

The Horse's Response Time – A Physiological Adaptation

R.M. Miller¹

The horse has the fastest response time of any common domestic animal. This is logical considering the fact that flight – the instinct to sprint away from perceived danger – is the species' principal defensive behaviour, but it is also a bit surprising considering the size of the animal.